the 1990s, the public-private partnership of a private and public sector, with a focus on a long-term commitment to a sustainable development and on a community-based approach, the private sector and financial resources are growing more important, not least, for strengthening the private sector and for growing the productive forces of a nation. In line with economic, social and environmental development, the private sector is the main driver of the economic growth and the main contributor to the development of the country.

Thanks to this high energy and knowledge of our manufacturing and engineering facilities, and the extensive support of our client partners, the International Alliance continues to grow the membership of the Institute. In 2002, we currently consist of 40,000 members, and the Institute will continue to grow our membership for the next 10 years. We are committed to our clients, and we have a strong focus on being there for our members in the future.

EASILY ON THE GO, the new Business Communications notebook from Business Communications is a handy, portable notebook for business professionals. It's a notebook that's always with you, and it's a notebook that's always ready to help you.

“The [business] sector is a catalyst of technological and cultural changes,” Williamson points out, “and making the right choices about the technologies to use is critical to the success of the firm.”

Williamson is, thus, far from being a technophile. He says that the single most important thing any firm doing today is to “get government’s policies, mainly tax and regulatory, straightened out. It’s the only way to get things to work.”

Williamson is also a proponent of free trade. He says that “the only way to get things to work is to get rid of the barriers to trade.”

ing communities (usually held in the summer) focus on the traditions. Many participants wear headwraps to mark the start of the new high season of dancing (usually in May or June). Larger groups of people are invited to sing and dance the songs of the past, as well as the songs of the community. In addition, a young couple is being initiated into the community dance.

Under Lady Hughes's leadership, the school's curriculum is up-to-date, and technical education is well above average. One of the best of the new generation of technical schools, it has a fine reputation for its graduates. The school is well thought out and well run. It is a pleasure to visit it.

PART OF THE PROBLEM may be the way in which the industry has been run. "There's been a tremendous effort to make things work on a day-to-day basis," says Robert L. Brown, president of the American Chemical Society. "The investments of companies with R&D in their portfolios, particularly in the pharmaceutical, chemical, and materials sectors,"
